Energetic Waitsburg

Besides its community Hometown Christmas celebration each December, if there's one thing for which Waitsburg has become well-known in recent years, it's a renaissance.

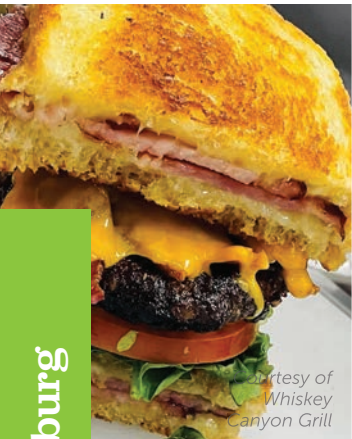

Stop, explore and linger in Waitsburg – Lined with historic buildings, its Main Street has resurged with new investment, energy and ideas. The historic farm town of just over 1,200 residents sits at the crossroads between U.S. Highway 12 and State Route 124. It's a great place to stop, explore and linger. Court Ruppenthal has had an up-close view of the latest revitalization. He is the owner of craft brewery and taproom Laht Neppur Brewing Co., 444 Preston Ave. With plenty for outdoor enthusiasts and history buffs, the town also offers something for everyone to eat, drink and gather. To kickstart the day, Ten Ton Coffee, 216 Main St., features locally roasted coffee and housemade baked goods. Retail along the corridor features a mix of businesses, including newcomer Simply Sawdust, a custom wood shop and retail store at 101 Main St., Gaudy Gals vintage gift boutique at 121 Main St., and 131 Main featuring customized gifts and local souvenirs. Drinking and dining include the tried-and-true Whiskey Canyon Sports Bar & Grill, 701 Preston Ave., as well as Main Street's latest developments: Bar Bacetto, the dreamy dinnertime destination for seasonal handmade pasta by James Beard-nominated chef Mike Easton at 119 Main St., with 12 seats and classic cocktails crafted by Erin Easton; American 35, the wood-fire pizza restaurant at 128 Main St. of Tom and Judy Bennett in the former American Legion Building; and Royal Block, a Bohemian hotel in the 1888 building at 222 Main St., where an art and wine bar is operated by owners Joseph Roberts and Tiina Jaatinen.
